

Chamomile Roman Oil

Nourishing Skin. Naturally.

Chamomile Roman Oil is obtained from the Roman Chamomile plant Anthemis Nobilis, a fully sustainable hardy perennial with products being processed using the plant's white flowers. Similar to the daisy flowers, Roman Chamomile is double petaled. Reaching around 15 - 45 cm in height, the low-growing Roman Chamomile plant usually takes about 6 – 8 weeks to produce flowers that are then harvested. The crop is perennial, so it is planted once every 8 years in May, and the crop is then harvested in July / August each year.

Our UK farmers have been involved with harvesting and distilling essential oils for over four generations.

The flowers of the Roman Chamomile plant typically yield between 0.4 and 1.0% of essential oil, therefore 100 - 250kg of flowers will yield 1kg of oil. A typical high quality English oil is herbaceous, sweet and fruity, with subtle hay or tea-leaf nuance.

Properties, benefits & uses of Chamomile Roman Oil:

Chamomile Roman Oil is frequently used in premium perfumes and personal care applications. With various properties to help digestive disorders such as nausea, vomiting and intestinal gas.

Also, with anti-inflammation properties, Chamomile Roman Oil can help relax muscles, treat pain, swelling, and irritation.

How we make our Chamomile Roman Oil:

After cutting, the flower heads are allowed to sun-dry for a short period before being steam distilled for 4 to 4.5 hours to extract the beautiful, pale blue essential oil. After the plant has been distilled, the flowers are then repurposed and used on farms as fertiliser. Chamomile Roman Oil is 100% pure and natural, a quality of which ProTec Botanica is very proud of bringing to the market.

Oil grades available:

Certified organic and conventional
